A 3D diagram of a structure made of blue and yellow blocks. A callout circle highlights a specific blue block configuration, marked with a red X, indicating a configuration that is not allowed.

This diagram illustrates the assembly of a 1x3 brick. It shows a 1x3 brick being placed on top of a 1x2 brick and a 1x1 brick. The 1x3 brick is shown in two positions: one where it is being placed on the 1x2 brick, and another where it is being placed on the 1x1 brick. The 1x2 brick and 1x1 brick are shown in their respective positions on the base structure.

A diagram showing a 1x2 brick with two 1x1 round studs on top. A circular callout highlights the brick, and an arrow points to its placement on a base structure made of various colored bricks (grey, white, yellow, and black).

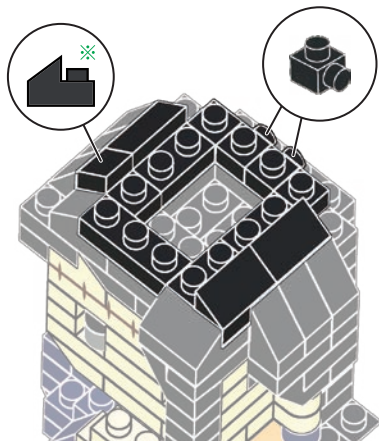

This diagram illustrates the assembly of a yellow 1x3 brick with a black pin. The yellow brick is shown being placed onto a grey 1x6 brick, which is already resting on a blue base. A black pin is shown being inserted into the hole in the yellow brick. A callout box provides a close-up view of the pin being inserted into the hole in the yellow brick.

Diagram 10 shows a yellow 1x3 Technic beam being attached to the top of the structure. A callout shows the beam being attached to a blue pin. The number 'x2' indicates that this step is repeated twice.
